B.C. Air Lines to Get Coast Runs From PWA

B.C. Air Lines, operators of regular service and charter flights on Vancouver Island, Queen Charlotte Islands, and mainland coastal areas, will take over certain services of Pacific Western Airlines on June 15.

Announcement of the change was made jointly today by Karl J. Springer, president of Pacific Western, and Francis G. Winspear, president of B.C. Air Lines.

TRANSFERRED

Under the new arrangement the separate daily flights by PWA to Tofino, Tahsis and Ocean Falls will be transferred to B.C. Air Lines. Included will be the operation of regular and charter operations out of Port Alberni and Tahsis covering a wide area of the west coast of the Island.

B.C. Air Lines will in addition acquire the 10-passenger amphibious aircraft which now fly from Vancouver to the terminal points, as well as a number of float-equipped aircraft handling regular and charter flights beyond. The sale of terminal equipment, offices and docking facilities at some of these points also is involved.

BIG EXPANSION

"Pacific Western Airlines is presently preparing for a large expansion which involves the taking over of the Canadian Pacific Airlines scheduled routes in the Mackenzie River district, north of Edmonton, early this summer," said Mr. Springer, "and expansion, if it is to be sound and healthy, must also involve some consolidation."

Mr. Springer said scheduled airline routes now play a predominant part in the company's services, and that "the transfer of certain coastal licences, in keeping with our policy of continuing consolidation, is advantageous to both companies."

The sale increases the aircraft fleet of B.C. Air Lines to 26, making it the largest carrier operating solely in British Columbia.

NO DISRUPTION

"Now that the transfer has been approved," said Mr. Winspear, "the change-over will be made without any disruption of service or inconvenience to the flying public."

Arrangements for ticketing and passenger handling will be virtually unchanged, Mr. Winspear noted, "and since the flying operation will be identical, there will be no lessening of the service to the public."

Extensive flight familiarization procedures of the aircraft BCA are taking over, have been underway for several weeks.
