

The New Theatre

Another page will be added to the desert's book of progress Friday evening, August 28, when Barstow's new, modernly equipped fire proof theater is formally opened to the public. No city in eastern San Bernardino county can boast of a finer playhouse. It may truthfully be referred to as an architectural monument in the up-to-date Barstow business district—it does more—it signifies the confidence of Mr. and Mrs. Justin LaFont in the fastest growing city on the desert and its future progress.

It is equipped with every modern convenience for the comfort and entertainment of the desert populace. Science has not perfected later sound equipment or projectors than those installed in this new specially insulated theater. The seats are the best obtainable, and comfortable as the big overstuffed chair of the average home.

Special air conditioning equipment and a well ventilated auditorium insures patrons of the utmost in comfort at all seasons of the year. Barstow has always needed a modern theater. This will become a reality with the opening of the new edifice on the above date. Its an accomplishment well done and Mr. and Mrs. Justin LaFont are due much credit for the result of their efforts, which gives Barstow its first exclusive theater building.
